WOMAN TO BE AGAIN MAN'S HELPMATE

Lindenwood College President Says Wife, Not Bread Winner, Will Be Dominant Type.

"The bread-winning woman is an important social factor, still she is no more in the future than in the past to be the dominion type," declared Rev. Dr. George F. Ayres, president of Lindenwood College at St. Louis, a young women's school, at the Presbyterian ministers' meeting Monday in course of an address on "The Future Development of Society."

"It seems an inherent necessity," continued Dr. Ayres, "that some women must always earn their bread, and for their sake it is a hopeful sign that the sphere of woman's activity is enlarging.

"I am glad that some women can teach where in other years they would have to scrub.

"The type of women in the future, as in the past, lies in the domain of wifehood and motherhood. We are working back to the ideal of Genesis, where God is represented as creating woman as a helpmate and partner to man. In time gone by she has been a slave and plural wife and has been subject to man. She has developed along lines of more suitable partnership."

Dr. Ayres held that social considerations, and other artificial causes, work more strongly to prevent marriage than any supposed inequality in the number of the sexes."
