NSA CONFERENCE HERE

The Missouri-Kansas region of the National Student Association is meeting on the L.C. campus Oct. 28-30 for their regional conference. Kati Ward, a junior in Shirley, is NSA regional chairman coordinating the conference, and Sandee Starr, a Junior in Parker, is NSA coordinator handling L.C. participation in the conference. Approximately 100 delegates are expected on campus from such schools as Westminster, Washington University, and Tabor College.

Among these delegates will be some of the leaders of NSA. Rose Ann Alderson, former president of the student body at Maryville, is head of the Student Government Information Center of NSA. She will lead the seminar on student services which includes student education travel, student discounts, and Pollock Papers (political background pamphlets).

Steve Parliament, past president of the student body at Redlandia University in California, is in charge of the seminar on the Initiation of On-Campus Educational Reform Programs. This discussion deals with promoting reform in curriculum and student participation in college administration.

The topic of the third seminar is the Development of an Educational Reform Program. This seminar is designed to help those campuses which have already started a student-participation movement in curriculum and administrative policy.

A $2.50 fee is required from any girl who wishes to participate. When asked about the conference Sandee Starr said, "Some dynamic speakers will be on campus, and a tremendous opportunity presents itself for every L.C. girl to get to meet them and find out what is happening on other campuses."

Tornado Hits Lindenwood Campus

The tornado that hit the Lindenwood College campus Oct. 14 at 10 p.m. damaged two buildings and several trees. The storm caused a three-hour electrical power failure. The path of the storm was from the north to the southeast. Damage extended from the Alumni Gates to the hockey field. No one was reported injured.

Two glass doors on the south side of Parker Hall's recreation room were blown in and broken. Rain covered most of the floor area and the furniture was blown to the north side of the room.

The utility building, housing nursery equipment, was torn from its foundation and shattered, though none of the equipment was harmed.

The electricity went off at 10:10 p.m. All four sub-stations on campus were disconnected, checked, and reconnected. After the turn limbs were removed from power lines, the electricity was turned back on at 11:30 a.m.

Two large trees, one behind Irwin Hall and another on Butler Way, were uprooted. Nineeen more were damaged. They will be trimmed and any wounds painted with tar paint.

The ladder on the water reservoir tower was demolished and an archery target was pulled from the ground.

J. A. BROWN BECOMES
L.C.'S 15th PRESIDENT

by Linda Jinkerson and Nancy Nemecek

Lindenwood College is honored in this term for liberal arts, began Dr. C. D. Linton, dean of the university. Dr. Linton was delivering the inauguration of John A. Brown. He went on to define this term by saying the purpose of liberal arts is to transmit from one generation to the next and to enrich and extend it. A liberal arts education is not only deals with paintings, drama, and music, but also concerned with the skill ability to perform.

Keeping to mind the effect of a liberal arts education on the generation, Dr. Linton spoke on civilization. He stated that civilization is a condition of the environment that biological aims cannot carry culture. The primary concern of a liberal arts college is to civilize each generation, helped by the home and church.

Dr. Linton felt that one must know what and how, before knowing why. He went on to quote Carl Sandburg as saying, "All of us are reaching out for lights beyond . . ."

The role of women is to maintain humane values and understand principles, said Dr. Linton at the conclusion of his speech. Lindenwood College, as a women's institution, is dedicated to producing a state of mind, for society is united by common goals and ideals. The road will be rocky and difficult at times, but you will never feel lost in a direction aimed straighter.

Induction of President

Dr. Francis L. McClure, president emeritus, presented Mr. Brown to the assembly. "We honor him for what he is, a liberating force in higher education to appear from the grave-yard on back campus, and chase her to Sibley's chapel, where she will play the organ. Halloween refreshments will be served after the chase in Butler gym. A Jean-supper will precede the ghost chase."

MOBILE PLANNED

An all-sch Halloween mixer will be held Oct. 29 in Butler gym. "The Freshmen will decorate the gym for this occasion, and the band will be the Continentals. Invitations will go out to Washington University, St. Louis University, Rolla, and other area schools. Regional delegates to the N.S.A. conference have also been invited to attend the mixer. The dress will be school colors."

The annual tradition of chasing Mrs. Sibley's ghost will be held Monday, Oct. 31, at 7:00. A bonfire will be built on back campus at 7:00. The students will then wait for Mrs. Sibley's ghost to appear from the grave-yard on back campus, and chase her to Sibley's chapel, where she will play the organ. Halloween refreshments will be served after the chase in Butler gym. A Jean-supper will precede the ghost chase.
